

COLLABORATIVE & RESPONSIVE ENGAGEMENT

The Collaborative and Responsive Engagement (CARE) Hub is a free digital communication platform for people interested in mental health practice. It was launched in response to the COVID pandemic by peak body for community mental health, the Western Australian Association for Mental Health (WAAMH), with support from Lotterywest.

We are stronger when we work together, therefore the CARE Hub is open to anyone connected to the community mental health sector, whether through lived experience, work or study.

There is no hierarchy on the Hub - we are all equal contributors as people with diverse qualifications and/or life experiences. By bringing people together, we can learn from each other and strengthen our connection and understanding, to benefit community mental health.

What is the CARE Hub?

- A shared place for members to communicate on various topics related to mental health & wellbeing, and explore opportunities for collaboration, including practice groups, working groups & scenario planning.
- A forum for members to draw on the collective wisdom of the community, ask questions, start conversations.
- A source of reliable information, tools & frameworks.
- A way to provide recommendations on areas requiring systemic advocacy for the community mental health sector.

What is the CARE Hub not?

- A forum for reviews, complaints or dispute management
- A therapeutic group
- Forum for individual advocacy
- A crisis, referral or helpline service
